Hit and run driver sentenced

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

A Minden man responsible for a hit-and-run that severely injured another man last fall has been sentenced for failing to remain at the scene of an accident causing bodily harm.

Andrew Bull, 28, pled guilty to the charge and received a six-month conditional sentence in Lindsay on May 17. Along with a year-long driver's licence suspension, he will have a two-year probationary period, had to pay a $100 victim surcharge and was also ordered to provide a DNA sample.

On Sept. 13, the Haliburton Highlands OPP reported a man had been critically injured after being struck by a vehicle at approximately 2:40 a.m. near the intersection of Bobcaygeon and Deep Bay Roads.

The injured man was discovered by a lost couple looking for a gas station, the driver showing up at the local OPP detachment the next day.

"The worst part is that he was left by the side of the road," said the mother of the man, who wished not be named. "If that couple hadn't come to town . . . He almost lost his foot. His injuries are catastrophic."

The Minden resident said her son, 29, was walking home from the Rockcliffe Tavern the night of the incident.

He was air-lifted from Minden to Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital.

"Sunnybrook praised the Minden ER for their excellent care," the man's mother told the paper. She said her son has "extensive, life-changing injuries." Regular trips to Peterborough for physiotherapy are now part

Gelert fire razes building

Minden Hills and Dysart firefighters battle a blaze in Gelert on Thursday, May 19. The fire, which occurred on Vick Road around 11 a.m., burned a storage building to the ground. Minden Hills fire chief Doug Schell said the cause of the fire is unknown due to the extent of damage. Everything was lost, according to Schell. There were no injuries or animals lost as a result of the fire. See more photos on page 4. ANGELICA INGRAM Staff

Algonquin Highlands passes parking bylaw

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The following are brief reports of items discussed during a May 19 Algonquin Highlands council meeting.

After a number of draft revisions since April, council passed a parking bylaw for the township, its first.

"This is not about making sweeping changes in Algonquin Highlands," said Reeve Carol Moffatt. "We need a parking bylaw as a business tool. This bylaw allows us to have control over where we have signs."

A few problematic areas in the township, such as the boat launch and dock area at Little Hawk Lake, are ultimately behind the creation of the bylaw. In these areas, residents often leave boat trailers parked throughout the summer season, leaving other residents to park their vehicles along roadways, causing congestion.

Signage will be erected at these problem areas. The bylaw also prohibits parking near the township's dry hydrants.

HHSS athletes heading to OFSAA this week

Members of the Red Hawks have been having success in the sport of track and field, following a good showing at the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics championships and going on to compete at the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations at the end of this week.

Eleven Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students have advanced to the OFSAA regionals, to take place in Belleville this Thursday and Friday, according to HHSS's Bruce Griffith.

Griffith told the paper that so far three school records were set, including Ryan Manning in the 2,000 steeple chase open, Shawn Walker in the 800 metre (midget) category and Kennadal Marsden in the 200 metre (senior) category.

- Angelica Ingram

Girls' soccer teams advance to COSSA

Both the senior and junior girls' soccer teams are headed to the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics championship.

The senior girls advanced to the next level after a 5-0 victory of St. Thomas Aquinas last week. That team was shut out by Sonya Flatman. Goals were scored by Evelyn Woof (2), Shelby Murdoch, Hannah Klose, and Mackenzie Henderson.

In the second game, they lost to Port Hope 4-3. Haliburton scorers: Evelyn Woof, Shelby Murdoch, and Mackenzie Henderson.

The junior girls are also headed to COSSA after playing Port Hope.

Fines range from $15 to $300

Fines range from $15 (reduced to $10 for voluntary payments within seven days) to $300 for parking in a disabled parking space without a permit.

Museum expansion

Members of the Dorset Heritage Museum are planning an 800-square-foot addition to the building.

Costed at approximately $73,000, the addition will provide fire-secure storage for records, a workspace for the processing of new acquisitions and additional area for displays.

The money will come from reserves, the museum's reserves currently sitting at approximately $83,000. With council's support, the project is moving to the next phase of engineered drawings.

Web cams

The township will install web cameras at the Stanhope Airport and on the Dorset tower at a cost of approximately $14,000. The camera at the tower will be operational once new fibre-optic cable is installed at the Dorset Recreation Centre as part of the county's new broadband expansion project with Bell. Once the cable is installed, there will be enough bandwidth for a wireless transmitter to beam signal to the tower.

Canoe lessons

Local adventure company Yours Outdoors will give canoe lessons at the Frost Centre this summer in a pilot project with the support of the township.

"To be consumed with resentment and anger is not going to help me or family or my son," she said. "Everyone is affected and lives are changed when something like this happens."

Building schools and bringing bikes in Cambodia

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

It's not just a school, but more of a community centre, that Bill Obee and other local Rotarians helped build in Cambodia during the winter.

Joining a mission headed by the Rotary Club of Bridgenorth-Ennismore-Lakefield, Obee spent three weeks in Cambodia in January, first handing out bicycles to children in rural areas, "which gives them a means of getting to school," he says.

In some cases a 10- or 12-kilometre trek to school means that without bicycles, children often opt to simply not go.

"It's also family transportation," Obee says.

The Minden Rotary Club raised money for the bikes and member Kay Godden joined Obee in distributing them.

Obee then spent two weeks building a school in small, rural community near Svay Rieng.

"It's a community built along a road," Obee says, adding the road was bumpy and made of dirt. "It's not a village, per se."

Some of the residents kept livestock such as cows and pigs. While the brick homes had no electricity, "while we were there, they were starting to put electricity up the road," Obee

We arrived on site to dirt and started building the foundation.

— MINDEN ROTARY CLUB MEMBER BILL OBEЕ says. "It's very remote."

Home for two weeks was what Obee calls "a very basic hotel-type concept" at a local women's centre. Haliburton Rotarians Brian and Dorothy Menton also joined the school-building expedition.

"We arrived on site to dirt and started building the foundation," Obee says. The walls of the brick building were then parged and a local contractor put the steel roof in place.

Two weeks later, the three-room building was basically complete. One room is a classroom where local children can learn English.

"Another will be set up with sewing machines to teach the ladies of the community how to sew," Obee says, adding the building is as much a community centre as it is a school, its aim to make life in the community more sustainable by teaching residents skills.

The building's third room is the teacher's living quarters. The school is solar-powered.

Obee says the locals were very grateful for the work being done and that the Rotarians often got visits at the site from local children.

"They would stop in and play some soccer," he says, adding the group also built a volley ball court. "Volleyball's a really, really big sport."

Beaver population changes can break dams

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

There were reports this spring of beaver dams bursting in Minden Hills township, apparently the result of their builders moving elsewhere.

According to the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry, while the beaver population in the area is considered stable, it is common for dams to burst during the spring freshet if beavers have moved on, or suffered a worse fate.

“Overall beaver populations in the Bancroft District [which includes Haliburton County] are cyclic in nature but at this time the population could be described as stable,” ministry senior media relations officer Jolanta Kowalski wrote in an email to the paper. “There are localized areas where beaver populations are increasing and other showing decline. Natural cycles of food availability and predation play important roles in this natural cycle.

“Beaver dams commonly burst as a result of a lack of repair by resident beaver. If the beaver in a local wetland have moved on for natural reasons or were predated upon, the dam could become weak and burst. This commonly occurs at this time of year, during the spring freshet and high water levels. The ministry is aware of this natural process and encourages landowners to manage beaver dams on their property to enhance public safety and prevent property damage on their properties and adjacent properties.”

Dying for input

RESIDENTS OF Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock got a rare opportunity this month when MP Jamie Schmale mailed out ballots for a constituency referendum.

That referendum was on Bill C-14, the assisted dying bill, an incredibly controversial piece of legislation and Schmale was asking constituents to tell him how to vote on the bill.

He's promised to vote however the majority of respondents tell him to vote.

Well done.

The job of MPs – at least idealistically – is to represent the will of their constituents in Ottawa. Obviously, our partisan system transforms politics into a team sport, where members of the red team, the blue team, the orange team – and to a lesser extent, the team from Quebec and that one, lonely member of the green team – vote in accordance with party wishes most of the time.

We know this when we cast our ballots in elections.

What we don't often see is MPs directly asking their constituents to instruct them in a vote and Schmale should be commended for allowing residents direct democracy on this most controversial issue.

Assisted dying is controversial the way abortion is controversial, because it involves the termination of a human life.

Reaction to such issues is visceral and automatic, tugging sharply on our humanity and allowing little room for middle ground.

Chances are you support the choice of abortion or you don't. Chances are you support the concept of physician-assisted death or you don't.

Chances are Schmale has a strong opinion on the matter, but he's doing the right thing here by putting that opinion aside.

MPs have no choice about drafting the legislation – the Supreme Court of Canada has given them a mandate to do so, and the deadline is approaching June 6 – but they do have choice in what that legislation will look like.

Making sure careful and correct controls are in place is paramount.

At the risk of being presumptuous, I'm going to write that most Canadians wouldn't support legislation that allows a depressed teenager to end her or his life, for instance.

The C-14 draft does have numerous controls in place and hopefully residents took some time to familiarize themselves with the basics of the bill before casting their ballots.

That we got to cast ballots in the first place is truly fantastic and hopefully Schmale – and other MPs too, for that matter – will enact this practice again on other highly controversial topics.

Kudos.

Kim Wark

MAN'S BEST FRENEMY

The courage of your convictions

THIS WEEK, I WILL BE HUNTING in our spring bear hunt. I planned on using my longbow. After all, a longbow hunt is challenging and has an aura of romance.

Somewhere along the way, however, my decision has evolved.

My plan on hunting a bear with my longbow first began during last deer season. I have taken some deer with that basic hunting tool and I practise with it daily. I understand what I can and cannot do with it, know proper shot angles cold and am very conscientious about making sure I do not take a shot unless a kill is certain.

In the days leading up to the hunt, I have been practising even harder and my shooting is as good as it's ever been too. I'm placing all my arrows inside a pie plate at 20 yards. I'm very confident with my abilities with it.

So, when the outfitter told me the average size of the bear he was seeing was around 130 pounds, I thought the longbow was a perfect choice. After all, I have taken 130 pound deer with it.

Sure there were issues about getting close enough with a tree stand and shooting from a stand that was longbow friendly but I did not see these things as being insurmountable.

Somewhere along the way, someone mentioned that the average bear in that area was nearer to 200 pounds. That didn't phase me, although it was at that point that I realized that my shooting glove that I use with my longbow was getting dangerously grooved from the string, which would mean

I would have to work in a new one to shoot as accurately – but that was OK since I always could use a crossbow as a back up.

I was not considering the crossbow at all, until I realized that even though I can place my arrows inside a pie plate at 20 yards with my longbow, most bears do not walk around with pie plates taped to their sides. I assure you, if they did, I'd be using that longbow.

No matter. The crossbow is a fine hunting tool and hunting bear with it will be challenging too. Not as challenging as hunting one with a longbow, but challenging nevertheless.

This was my thought up until yesterday, when I received an email showing me a trail camera photo from one of the bait sites the outfitter is preparing. It showed a bear that was considerably larger than 200 pounds. It was at this point that I noticed my crossbow's string was in heavy need of waxing. You don't want a dry string during a bear hunt. Dirt gets in and wears at it and suddenly there's a risk of string breakage at just the wrong time.

Luckily, I have a rifle – in .308. This allows me to be further away, which is nice since it makes me less obtrusive to the bear's habitat, plus it gives me a fair running start.

Admittedly, this isn't as challenging as using a longbow, as originally intended, but I think it's best for all involved.

Unless, of course, I get sent photos of larger bears.

Scopes get knocked out of whack, you know.

Columns and Letters to the Editor

The age of information 'lite'

YOU MIGHT RECALL FROM SCHOOL DAYS the story of the young Greek guy who sat beside a pool, saw his image reflected in the water and fell in love with himself. He couldn't drag himself away and sat moon-struck, staring at his reflection until he died.

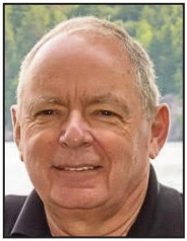

His name was Narcissus and psychologists named a mental condition after him. They called it Narcissistic Personality Disorder, or narcissism, a grandiose view of oneself and a craving for the attention and admiration of others.

Medical libraries bulge with studies on narcissism, some of the most recent examining whether social media and the selfies phenomena are fertilizing the growth of narcissism.

You don't have to visit a medical library to find evidence that narcissism is growing. Television, hijacked by reality shows, is all narcissism now. More and more, so is politics.

Two of the more obvious North American narcissists among us are Kim Kardashian and Donald Trump. Look around and you'll see others.

I don't know if social media is contributing to what the experts say is a frightening growth in narcissism. Certainly new media such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and others, and omnipresent smartphones and tablets, has increased the craving for self gratification. We are a society becoming obsessed with wanting to know who is paying attention to us.

JIM POLING SR.
From Shaman's Rock

A victim of all this is informed thinking. Too much of the information needed to build sound judgment and make good decisions now comes to us in low-cal snippets. New media snippets in which clicks and views are more important than well-researched facts.

Never in world history has the need for informed thinking been so important. Our shrinking world is cluttered with issues requiring critical thinking based on information that is as solid as Haliburton rock. Yet the Age of Information contains too much information that is soft as sand, as trustworthy as shadows.

Reading is the most effective way of getting informed, but for many of us reading has become simply glancing. We glance at information 'lite' and make our opinions instantly.

Research shows that while our visual skills are improving significantly, our critical thinking and analytical skills are declining. This trend will continue as we play more screen games and puzzles, and allow our kids to spend more time with shoot'em up games than with books, either paper or digital. There are plenty of statistics on our electronic game habits but too many are collected by the gaming industry to be taken as fact. However, it's probably safe to say that more than half of adults and at least one-third of kids under 18 play personal computer games on laptops, desktops, phones and tablets. Many school teachers use video games as a classroom teaching tool.

Anyone can confirm this by spending time with today's kids. They process visual information quickly because of time spend with television and screen games. Everything is real time.

Meanwhile, reading skills have declined. Fewer kids actually read for pleasure these days. Too little time is spent reading that develops imagination, vocabulary, critical thinking and seeing the perspectives taught by history.

Reading, whether the words are laid down in print or digitally, sets us on the road to informed, critical thinking. Informed thinking helps us to understand change – why it is often necessary and how to handle it. It also helps us develop better values, and generally become a better society.

And, it allows us to rise above rumours, superstitions and political hyperbole and speak intelligently and forcefully against dumb political decisions.

Speaking of dumb political decisions, Newfoundland, which has Canada's lowest literacy rate, will tax books starting in July. Its provincial sales tax will rise from eight to 10 per cent and be applied to books. That will be on top of the five per cent federal GST already charged on books.

It also has announced it will close 54 of the province's 95 libraries.

You kind of wonder how all that is going to work out for them.

I also wonder if things would have worked out better for Narcissus if, instead of just staring at his reflection, he had brought a book to the pool.

letters to the editor

Scrap yard? Are you kidding?

To the Editor,

I just finished reading the full report by an environmental lawyer representing the Gull Lake Cottager Association (of which I am not a member of). This report can be found online at the Minden Hills website.

Unfortunately, at the council meeting Thursday, May 12, council cut the reading of the report short due to time constraints. Hopefully, that is the last mistake council makes in regards to this proposed bylaw amendment.

This document contains numerous references to federal, provincial and municipal regulations and bylaws. All of which lead me to believe this is a really bad idea. This bylaw amendment if approved could have serious environmental and financial consequences of the community. I have seen more than enough of my tax dollars wasted on legal costs due to poor, uninformed decisions made by politicians.

I am not opposed to new business coming to this community, in fact the more the better for all of us here in Minden Hills. As the real estate agents say, "location, location, location." I am sure there is an excellent location somewhere else for this type of business. I urge your readers to view this document on the Minden Hills website.

CARP tackles assisted dying bill at AGM

by ANGELICA INGRAM
Times Staff

The assisted dying legislation, also referred to as Bill C-14, has been making headlines in the news and is a topic of much discussion.

The issue was also the centre of discussion at the CARP annual general meeting held on May 15 at the Haliburton Legion.

As the former CEO of Dying with Dignity Canada, Wanda Morris, who now serves as CARP's chief operations officer and VP of advocacy, spoke candidly about the topic and her passion for the assisted dying movement.

"We could be like Woody Allen when we come to talk about death, and what he said is I'm not afraid of dying, I just don't want to be there at the time," said Morris. "And I think for many of us, as we age, death is not the enemy. What some of us are afraid of though is a long, painful dying process."

Morris shared with the guests her personal experience with a relative who had dementia and the toll it took on family members.

"As sometimes happens, he [the relative] became more and more aggressive," she said. "One day at lunch he slapped my sister-in-law across the face."

The family decided to move the relative into a facility, due to his deteriorating state, however he became more aggressive and eventually the staff strapped him into his wheelchair.

"And that's how he spent the last weeks of his life," said Morris.

As a result of this personal experience, Morris began getting heavily involved with the Dying with Dignity movement and in shaping legislation around the topic.

Morris spoke of a court case, known as the Carter case, where nine Supreme Court justices ruled unanimously that an individual who is was grievously and irremediably ill should have the right to an assisted death if their suffering was intolerable and there was no treatment acceptable to them.

"This then opened the door for assisted dying for individuals with terminal illnesses but it didn't stop there, the justices in their writing specifically noted that this was not just about terminal illness but more," she said. "It is that definition of grievously and irremediably ill that is at the centre of this current bill and the controversy around it."

Morris went on to commend Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MP Jamie Schmale for offering his constituents a referendum on the issue, with a ballot voters can fill out indicating if Schmale should vote in favour or not of Bill C-14.

Mailed to all constituents in the riding, the referendum offers every household member a vote on the bill, which can then be sent back to Schmale's office at no charge.

"I am writing to ask you for your opinion on what could be, to my knowledge, a first for voters in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock – a constituency referendum," it reads on the mailing. "Every bill appears before the House of Commons three times and is voted on twice. The timeline of his bill, its debates and votes are tight and will be more compact than usual. The NDP and Conservatives have announced that this vote will be a free vote ... This referendum is your opportunity to vote as dictated by your own conscience and beliefs."

While members of parliament thought the vote may be taking place last week, it has been postponed and now will not be taking

Wanda Morris, chief operations officer and VP of advocacy for CARP, was the guest speaker at the local CARP chapter's annual general meeting held on May 15 at the Haliburton Legion. Morris, who used to be the CEO of Dying with Dignity Canada, spoke on the proposed assisted dying legislation, current campaigns CARP is spearheading and more. ANGELICA INGRAM Staff place until the end of May, at the earliest.

To that end Schmale is encouraging constituents to continue to send in their ballots, either by email, postage mail, fax or by hand delivering it to his office.

"We want to thank all those constituents who took the time to bring in their ballots to meet the timeline," Schmale's office wrote in an email. "As with the rules of this constituency referendum, we will be releasing the results prior to the Third Reading vote in the House of Commons."

More information on the referendum can be found at www.jamieschmale.ca.

At the AGM, Morris encouraged those in attendance to fill out the ballot and vote with their conscience.

However the CARP representative did stress that the proposed legislation does not include many recommendations made on the subject, and therefore the public should not vote in favour of the proposed bill, to allow it to be revised.

"Here's the deal with Bill C-14 ... it should be available for mature minors ... it should be available to those with mental health issues ... and finally they recognized the unique problem of individuals with dementia," she said. "What was really surprising is when the bill came out ... they took the Supreme Court's decision and narrowed it ... so now we have a bill that's quite unclear ...

we're better off with no law than a bad law."

Shifting to her role with CARP, Morris said she took the job with the organization to help people live with dignity, particularly seniors.

Currently CARP is spearheading three campaigns, the first being Feet to the Fire. The goal of this campaign is to keep the Liberal government accountable to the campaign promises they made during the last federal election.

The second campaign focuses on CPP enhancement, as two thirds of Canadians don't have pension plans. This campaign is also examining the type of financial advice seniors receive and what is most suitable for them.

The third campaign is about dementia, and includes collecting stories about the disease and its impact on victims.

Following Morris's talk, CARP president Bob Stinson recapped the organization's past year and the strides made.

Unfortunately the group lost two of their founding members, following the deaths of Peter Minaki and Frank Thom.

Stinson spoke to their contributions to the group and the void they have left behind.

"I really miss them," he said.

A new slate of board directors was voted in and the financial statements were presented. CARP had nearly $2,500 in funds at their end of March 2016.

Local dragon boat club welcomes men

by DARREN LUM
Times Staff

It's not just for the ladies.

Minden's Scotty Boyd encourages other guys to join the Haliburton Highlands Paddlers. "Come on out. It's a great time. Great experience with good people," he said.

With a gold medal win last year in the C class at the Christie Lake Amazing Races in Dundas, Ont. and a bronze at the Port Perry Festival, the club has been competitive. Boyd points out this is still a recreation club though that just happens to get better and better all while having a good time.

There is a push by the club to encourage more men and young people to join the club, which offers an opportunity to get out on the water and participate in the dynamic paddling sport of dragon boating.

The club is open to people 14 and up. Members meet at the dock near the back of Patient News in Haliburton, starting in May and ending in September. A season membership is $150. The club encourages drop-in paddlers to try it out on Sundays from 1:30 to 3 p.m., which includes a brief introduction and lesson. The cost is $15.

The coach and member of the recreation dragon boat club may have initially joined the club three years ago because of his wife, Jane, but really has enjoyed the sport for what it is and what it means to him.

"Being up here we want to do things together and this is an activity we both can do," he said, referring to curling and cycling.

He dispels any perceived notion that dragon boating is only associated with women and breast cancer.

"There's a lot of teams formed from cancer survivors, but this wasn't the push for up here. There was a enough interest and it was just mainly ladies that joined for some reason," he said.

The certified competitive curling coach appreciates the technical aspect of sport. When he joined the club and got involved with dragon boating he made a point of taking a weekend course, amounting to 16 hours in class and on water (for the steersman accreditation) in Pickering with Dragon Boat Canada to become a certified dragon boat community coach, which included the creation of a 10-week lesson plan recognized by Dragon Boat Canada.

Being able to teach others properly was important to the retiree with the Scottish accent and wry sense of humour.

"I get to stand at the back of the boat and tell 20 women what to do and they'll listen," he said, laughing

The club's other coaches are Janine Papadopoulos, who also was the first coach of the club, and Lois Deacon. He recognized the efforts of the other coaches and wanted to share the load of coaching work.

The scheduling is very flexible, as there are four practice sessions every week to choose from. They are 7 p.m. to 8:30 on Mondays and later in the day from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. On Wednesdays, the practices are held from 7 p.m. to 8:30 and again from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Practice sessions are not compulsory.

Boyd, an avid sailor, loves being on the lake and calls this the next best thing to sailing, which he said he can't do in the Highlands.

"I like the push. The physical part of it. A big part is the social. The friendship with the people and it just nice being with the group," he said.

Wild About Nature golf tournament: tee up for the trust

The Land Trust is delighted to be partnering with the Pinestone to host our annual Gala, and a new fundraising event, the "Wild About Nature" Golf Tournament. Pat Warren, HHLT's Director of Resource Development, and John Teljeur, general manager of the Pinestone, are excited to be collaborating on this exciting event.

"We are looking for players and sponsors who are interested in having fun while supporting the HHLT with our efforts to conserve land, conduct research, and provide education. The Land Trust helps our community and visitors understand that protecting the land is essential to securing our future, so we grow in harmony with our environment. A healthy economy depends on a healthy environment," says Warren.

The partnership aligns with the Pinestone's new green initiatives which Teljeur is implementing. These include water and energy conservation initiatives as well as buffering around water courses. Teljeur says he is "thrilled about the partnership and the green initiatives going forward."

Players need to register by June 21 to take advantage of the early bird pricing of $120. After this date, the price rises to $135.00. The event includes a light lunch, dinner, 18 hole best ball scramble, and some wonderful prizes. Shot gun start at 12:30.

For more information on the tournament, or to register, visit www.haliburtonlandtrust.ca, call 705-457-3700 or email Pat at patri-

‘Rideshare’ website expands transportation options

Got empty seats in your car? Fill them with people going in your direction. The Rural Transportation Options Committee is pleased to announce that the Haliburton Rideshare website is live and waiting for you to post your ride.

What is Ride sharing? Ride sharing involves two or more travellers sharing a ride in a private vehicle, where both the driver and the passengers have a similar starting point, end point and/or route. For regular travel to the same place, this is also known as carpooling. Many of us travel alone in our vehicles to the same places every day or every week for work, meetings, recreation or appointments. At the same time, others may be stuck at home and in need of a ride. Ride sharing is a great way to get to know people and expand your transportation options. “The unused seats in most drivers’ vehicles are the biggest untapped transportation resource in Haliburton County,” says Kate Hall, the local consultant working with the committee to get the initiative rolling. Not everyone has access to a vehicle and while there are a number of transportation services offered through various agencies in the County, not all are available for use by the general public. That’s where haliburtonrideshare.ca comes in.

The Haliburton Rideshare website allows you to tap into a larger pool of potential rides beyond your immediate social circle. It’s a great way to use technology and grow our connections as a tight knit community. Whether you’re a driver with a ride to offer or a rider with a need to get somewhere, haliburtonrideshare.ca can help connect you with people going in the same direction. The site is easy to use and instructions are provided, and you can call 1-844-771-RIDE (7433) for assistance if you need some help.

Along with the website, the Rural Transportation Options Committee is launching a campaign to raise awareness about ride sharing in an effort to get people to share rides more often as a way to help address the need for transportation and the lack of public transit in our communities. To connect with others to share a ride visit www.haliburtonrideshare.ca. Wherever you go, share the ride! Rural Transportation Options is a part of the Haliburton County Community Co-operative.

Rotary Interact raises funds for refugees

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School vice-principal Dave Waito looks out from a cream pie after a student hit him, as part of a fundraising effort to raise money for the Haliburton Refugee Sponsorship Committee between the Interact Rotary Club, a student group, and the Rotary clubs of Haliburton and Minden on Thursday, May 19. Fuel for Warmth thanks community

Fuel for Warmth – a local charity that helps residents heat their homes through the winter – increased its client base by nearly a third during the 2016/16 fiscal year.

The organization helped 202 individuals last year – an increase of 31 per cent over the previous year.

“Joanne Barnes, Marilynne Lesperance and Lorne McNeil would like to say thank you to all donors, sponsors and volunteers for making this winter a successful one for Fuel for Warmth,” reads a release.

“Our annual fundraiser, the Highlands Christmas Shindig in November 2015, raised over $19,000 and, as a result we now have the opportunity to help even more families this coming winter. We are now in a position to be able to consider the purchase of much needed new equipment (log splitter and a dump trailer) for the 2016/2017 winter. These items will increase our ability to serve those in need in Haliburton County.”

Fuel for Warmth does not receive any government funding and is not affiliated with any government agencies. It relies on donations to do its work.

Fuel for Warmth won in the Not-for-Profit category at this year's Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce awards gala and founder Joanne Barnes was named Highlander of the Year.

For more information on the organization, visit www.fuelforwarmth.com

Fuel for Warmth has increased its client base by nearly a third. They also had a highly successful fundraising year, bringing in $19,000 at the Christmas Shindig (seen at right).

Minden Bible Church celebrating 60 years

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE heard ...

A Sunday school teacher asked the children just before she dismissed them to go to church, "And why is it necessary to be quiet in church?" Annie replied, "Because people are sleeping."

A funeral service is being held in a church for a woman who has just passed away. At the end of the service, the pallbearers carrying the casket accidentally bump into a wall jarring the casket. They hear a faint moan. They open the casket and find that the woman is actually alive. She lives for 10 more years and then dies. A ceremony is again held at the same church and at the end the pallbearers are again carrying the casket out. As they are walking, the husband calls out, "Watch out for the wall!"

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE also heard Pastor David say that ...

MBC is celebrating 60 years!

Minden Bible Church is celebrating 60 years of ministry. Join us Sundays this summer to celebrate.

We begin the summer on the July 1 weekend with a family beef barbecue and outdoor tent. We end the summer on Labour Day weekend with a corn roast and outdoor tent and we climax the Civic Holiday weekend with an Anniversary Service and dignitaries.

A church life of 60 years is similar to one's personal life - with many good years and some difficult years. Fortunately, MBC is enjoying good years and growing in numbers.

Our mission is taken from the interchange between the legal expert and Jesus, where Jesus is asked "What is the greatest commandment?" His answer is to love God and to love others.

Church is a spiritual family and when we come to the place in our life where we decide rather than running from God we come to God and accept His exclusive offer of forgiveness through His son, Jesus Christ. We come into a spiritual family where God gives us a spiritual birthmark. That birthmark is love.

Jesus said that by this shall they know that you're my followers if you love one another. You see a need, you feel a need and according to your resources you address the need.

That's what family is. The simplest and most profound characteristic of God is "God is Love." The simplest and most profound characteristic of a Christian is a Christian extends love.

This summer MBC will be offering a number of community events to open our doors to the community - to share in our celebration and to give us the opportunity to serve the community. Enjoy the celebration!

Pastor David Johnson

HCPL's DVD of the Month: Bridge of Spies It's time to order your rain barrels Steven Spielberg takes an often overlooked moment in history and turns it into a compelling character study in Bridge of Spies.

During the escalation of the Cold War, Rudolph Abel (Mark Rylance) is arrested by the FBI on charges of being a Soviet spy.

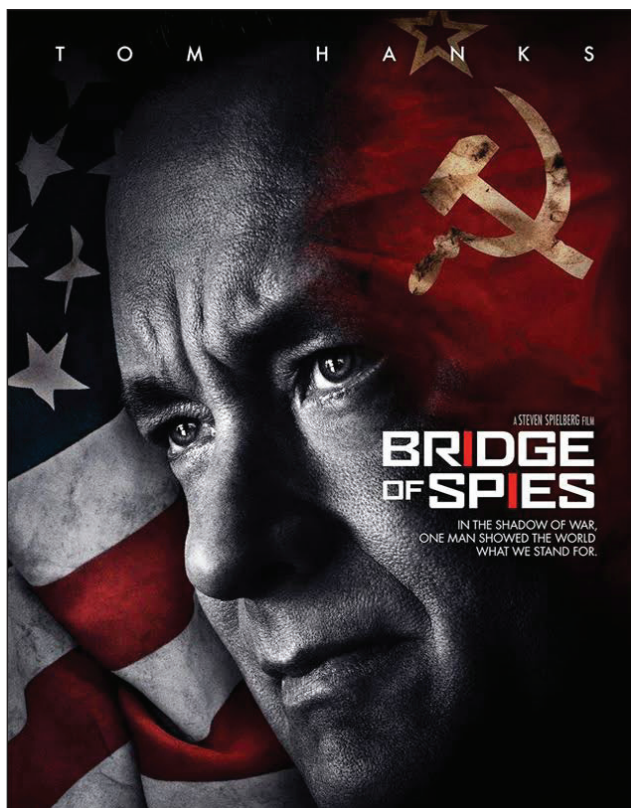

To avoid the incident becoming fodder for propaganda by the U.S.S.R., insurance lawyer James B. Donovan (Tom Hanks) is chosen to defend Abel in a fair trial.

However, Donovan - having previously participated in the Nuremberg trials - takes his duties to uphold the principles of the American legal system more seriously than officials hoped for, earnestly defending Abel.

With anti-Communist sentiment running high, and despite the trial making Donovan a public pariah, Donovan ultimately saves Abel from the death penalty arguing that Abel could be held as insurance should an American spy be captured by the Russians.

Then, when an American U2 spy plane is shot down over the U.S.S.R. and its pilot captured, Donovan must travel to East Germany to negotiate the prisoner exchange on the Glienicke Bridge, one of many that would earn the structure the name "bridge of spies."

Bridge of Spies is a handsome dramatization of a true story. It is available to reserve on DVD at the Haliburton County Public Library.

The Friends of Ecological and Environmental Learning is taking orders for this year's rain barrel fundraising sale.

The barrels are ideal for catching water for your garden and are being sold for $60. They typically include a leaf and mosquito filter, spigot and overflow hose.

You can also purchase downspout diverters for $25. These redirect water to one or more rain barrels, pools or hot tubs. They prevent excessive overflow and simplify the winterization process.

For $10 you can buy flexible downspout pipes, which easily connect downspouts to rain barrels.

They are also selling rain barrel stands for $30. These elevate rain barrels to improve watering can access and increase water flow.

To guarantee availability, order online by June 15 at www.rainbarrel.ca/feel.

Barrels will be available for pick up on Saturday, June 25 from 9 a.m. to noon at Kawartha Dairy (12750 Highway 35, Minden).

Money raised goes to support the 2016 Haliburton-Muskoka-Kawartha Children's Water Festival.

Hummingbirds return

AROUND THE TOWN

Patti Fleury

705-488-2938 brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse the hummingbirds have finally arrived and the stand of old lilacs about to bloom any day now. Our friends in Sharon, Ont. have many designer backyard feeders which attract a variety of birds year round. This spring again a pair of orioles have returned and in spite of having a specific feeder and special feed for them prefer the hummingbird feeder in spite of their beaks being too large to access the sweet syrup.

To our delight there seems to be more birds in the doorway area than last year. One June back in the eighties during the Connemara Camp preparations there were 27 barn swallow nests around the house and in the drive shed. That summer the canoes could not be moved down to Crystal Lake ready for camp to start until the baby swallows nesting under the seats learned to fly.

I still chuckle recalling a magazine cartoon of two birds looking down into a nest with no bottom. The one says to the visitor, "we just don't like children."

Watching the devotion and hard work of feeding the constantly open mouths and parenting patience guiding the young ones to independence there are valuable lessons to be learned by we human observers..

On Saturday, May 28 the Crystal Lake Cottage Association and The Galway and Area Ratepayers Association Inc. will be sponsoring an Environmental Cleanup as part of the Adopt-a-Road program. Volunteers wishing to assist should meet at the Galway Hall at 10 a.m.

The Haliburton Highlands Grannies are holding their Spring Tea in support of the Stephen Lewis Foundation on Sunday, May 29, at the Haliburton Legion from 2 to 4 p.m.

As part of the Tea there will also be a Loonie Auction, Door prizes, plant sale and an African market place which opens at 1 p.m. Tickets are $12/person and for more information or to purchase tickets please call Norma at 705-457-2015 or Gayle at 705-286-3411.

Congratulations to the Kinmount Unit of Sparks, Brownies and Guides for selling out its supply of Girl Guide Cookies in a single day blitz last Saturday.

Fortunately I had bought two boxes at the Kinvale Inn days earlier the contents of which are already history. Looking back many years to the original version those cookies were plain vanilla shortbread shaped like a three leaf clover and still delicious..

Just a reminder to the liver and onions fans this month's lunch at the Legion Branch 441 Kinmount is scheduled for Tuesday, May 31 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The cost for the meal which includes the entree, dessert and beverage is $8 and please note that a delicious hot alternative is available should "L & O" not appeal. There are many ongoing activities at this busy Branch which can be found on its Facebook site

The book Where Duty Leads which chronicles the story of the famous local 109th Battalion in the First World War is now available.

Published by the Victoria County Historical Society the book includes images and stories about the lives of the servicemen and also how the Great War affected the community back home. Copies can be purchased now from Guy Scott at 705-488-3182 or at the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace. Please note that the Marketplace (705-488-1414), located on the lower level of the Kinmount Community Centre, is open Fridays through Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Kinmount Agricultural Society invites all of the volunteers who contribute annually to the success of the famous Kinmount Fair to a volunteer appreciation day on Sunday, June 5 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Kinmount Fairgrounds Arena. Also on that date at 2 p.m. the Kinmount Pioneer/Heritage Society will be holding an open house at the heritage complex on the fairgrounds.

The open house will include a tour of the complex, a look at all the display materials and an overview of the plans for the 2016 Fair. The society would welcome new volunteers interested in assisting organizing this important presentation which has been an integral part of the fair for the past 37 years. For more details on the Heritage Society please contact Guy Scott at 705-488-3182.

Until next week keep busy and well. They go together...

Just across the silent stream
Where sweet flowers are ever blooming
And the banks are ever green.
